About The SCC

- • • The Society of Cannabis Clinicians (SCC) is a nonprofit professional association of physicians and other healthcare providers dedicated to advancing medical cannabis knowledge and upholding the highest standards of patient care.
- • • Guided by three core pillars - education, research, and advocacy - the organization continues to shape the future of cannabinoid medicine worldwide.

History

The SCC was founded in 1999 by Tod Mikuriya, MD, as the California Cannabis Research Medical Group. This happened three years after voters legalized the medical use of cannabis in California. The group held quarterly meetings in the San Francisco Bay Area where doctors who approved cannabis use by patients shared findings and observations, and discussed legal and political matters.

Dr. Mikuriya died in 2007. Jeffrey Hergenrather, MD, served as SCC President from 2008 through 2018. The current President is Stephen Robinson, MD, and the tradition of quarterly meetings continues (online now).

A 2020 article by SCC member Kevin M. Takakuwa detailed the history of the SCC, which is the first and oldest U.S. medical organization promoting the use of medical cannabis. The paper discusses the impact of SCC Founder Dr. Tod Mikuriya and sheds light on the history of the medical cannabis movement that is largely unrecognized.
